

The peace and security climate of West Africa in 2019 recorded a mix of political, economic and security gains as well as challenges. The presidential and parliamentary elections in Nigeria and Benin respectively were marred by significant recorded incidents of violence arising from disputed policies and processes while the elections in Senegal,